72	Index

Ral Partha has manufactured lead figures for 17 years. We have always marked our products with lead warnings cautioning our customers on proper handling. We produce a quality product at a fair price for gamers and collectors, not toys for children.

In December, 1992 the Commissioner of Health for New York State banned the sale of miniatures containing lead. He asserted lead figures posed a serious health hazard to children, but he could not cite one case of a child with lead poisoning from figures.

Representatives of the game industry, including ourselves, demonstrated to the satisfaction of a Department of Health Judge and the New York State Supreme Court that the Commissioner's conclusions were faulty; no serious health hazard existed.

After this victory, Ral Partha felt like the Grand Duchy of Fenwick. We captured New York, now how do we surrender before we get crushed.

We believe lead figures are not a health hazard. However, lead exposure has become an emotional issue in our country. We realize it is time for us to change. Even as a united industry, we can not afford to fight a war in every state of the country.

Effective March, 1993 Ral Partha will begin a step by step change from lead to a pewter we call Ralidium. This metal is deemed safe by the Federal Government for use in eating utensils and canning food.

Unavoidably, this change will raise the price of figures. However, there will be important benefits to the consumer. Pewter figures can be safely handled by children under the age of 14, although they will still be unsuitable for very young children because of sharp edges and points. Also, pewter offers the advantage of higher quality in detail.

Every industry faces conditions which force it to adapt or perish. We can adapt to change like the computer industry or we can perish like the buggy whip manufacturers. Ral Partha has its face to the future and expects to thrive in the new environment.

The price list denotes figures available in Ralidium. All other figures contain LEAD which may be harmful when swallowed. When using, do not eat, drink or smoke. Wear a work apron and wash hands after handling. If pregnant or contemplating pregnancy, handle only with professional supervision. Ingestion may cause anemia, nervous system or kidney damage, and harm to a developing fetus. Not suitable for use by children under 14 years of age.
